TAFT WELCOMED TO HAWAII LAND.

At 5:30 a. m. The Custom launch, Waterwitch, left to meet her at 5:30. Aboard the Waterwitch were Acting Governor Atkinson, Collector Stackable, A. S. Chisholm and representatives of the press.

Bulletin reporters boarded the big launch immediately, obtaining interviews, as elsewhere appear, with Taft and other prominent men of the party. Everybody was delighted with the first glimpse of Honolulu. The first words uttered by the visitors were expressions of appreciation of the beauty and charm of Hawaii.

At 6:55 a. m. the Manchuria was alongside the Hackfield wharf at the seaward end of the harbor. The big wharf was packed with humanity, all anxious to get a look at the city's guests.

The Hawaiian band played first on the wharf and then went alongside the Manchuria in the tug Ironsides to welcome the famous crowd.

On the wharf a detachment of soldiers from Camp McKinley lined up to form a lane through which the members of the party could make their way.

Acting Governor Atkinson, escorting the President's daughter, Miss Alice Roosevelt, were the first to leave the wharf.

The band, as suggested by The Bulletin, played "Alice Where Art Thou?" and played it again. This was before the crowd got a glimpse of Miss Roosevelt.

Owing to the many rigs on the enclosed portion of the wharf, and the space occupied by those receiving and those being received, the great crowd of citizens and citizens had to remain outside. The Manchuria was docked out in all her finery and presented a pretty picture.

The Ellis Quinlet Club went out to the boat in the tug Fearless, returning aboard the Manchuria, furnishing Hawaiian music all the way in.

Walter Dillingham escorted Miss Roosevelt to her carriage and a few minutes after the passengers were ashore a dozen rigs were on their way to the Nuuanu Pali.

At 10:30 o'clock a special train left the city for the Honolulu plantation, a trip full of pleasant discoveries to those who went.

At 12:30 the gathering for luncheon at the Hawaiian Hotel was complete and midday was spent in a manner profitable to all, information concerning the islands being gladly imparted by the Honolulu guests and interested in received by the visitors.

Though clouds hung over the mountains all day, the weather was most pleasant. At the Manchuria arrived at the harbor this morning a magnificent rainbow crowned the hills back of the city, a fair promise of good weather during the all too brief stay of the celebrities.

The city appeared today in holiday attire, flags were flying everywhere when the party landed. A Fourth of July appearance was noted by the members of the party who failed not in the notice of everything. Never has Honolulu crowded so much entertainment into a single day, and it is probable that few of the Taft party have before been in such brief space of day-light so entertained.
